

SHORT on WORK

Global short-video contest on contemporary work

2022 – 10th edition

“SHORT on WORK – a global contest for short videos on contemporary work” was designed and launched by the Marco Biagi Foundation – PhD Programme in Labour, Development and Innovation at the University of Modena and Reggio Emilia. The aim of the contest is to promote and collect short videos on contemporary work and to feed an international audiovisual archive of video representation of contemporary work contemporary film, to be used for teaching and research purposes.

According to our interdisciplinary approach, video representations of work are capable of casting new light on the transformations that have taken place in the world of work in recent decades, thereby overcoming the traditional dichotomy between corporate video productions and social documentaries. In this connection, Short on Work focuses in particular on short videos, as privileged tools not only for documentation but also for reflection and research.

REGULATION

1) Participation terms

- 1.1) Only audiovisual works no longer than 10 minutes can participate.
- 1.2) Contemporary work must be the subject of all submitted films.
- 1.3) Submitted works can be produced in any language, but they must contain either English or Italian subtitles in the preview version.
- 1.4) Submitted works must have been produced not before 1st June, 2021.
- 1.5) Submitted works and music must be original; in case they are not, all property rights must be paid.
- 1.6) There are no limits regarding the number of works that can be presented by a single applicant.

2) Selection, prizes and Panel of Judges

- 2.1) The Organizers of the Contest will select the best films and will promptly notify the relevant authors within May, 2023.
- 2.2) Prizes will be awarded by a Panel of Judges composed by academics and professionals in the audiovisual industry and labor issues.
- 2.3) The prize for the winning short film is worth 1.000 €.
- 2.4) The Panel of Judges reserves the exclusive right to assign prizes.
- 2.5) Directors reserve the right to assign special mentions; those can be awarded by specifically designated jurors, who may as well not be part of the Panel of Judges.
- 2.6) The selection of finalists' film must remain confidential until the official programme of Short on Work is announced.

3) Rules for participation

- 3.1) The videos have to be submitted via Short Film Depot
- 3.2) To register for the contest is necessary to fill the form at the following link
<https://shortonwork.fmb.unimore.it/registration-form-short-on-work-2021/>
- 3.3) At the moment of notification of official selection, selected authors only will be asked to provide a link for the download of one copy of the film in .mov or .mp4 format at the highest definition without any subtitle

4) Winners' announcement

4.1) Winners of SHORT ON WORK 2021 will be announced and awarded during an award ceremony that will be held on May 2023.

4.2) The finalists' films will be screened just before the ceremony. A series of related events dedicated to the exploration of film as an instrument for interdisciplinary research on work will take place on this occasion.

5) Usage of the submitted works

5.1) Directors, authors and copyright owners of the submitted works authorize the Organizers to screen the films during the award ceremony and in occasion of the related events that will take place.

5.2) Videos can be published on the Youtube channel of the contest, if the copyright owners give consent at the moment of the submission.

5.3) Directors, authors and copyright owners of the submitted works authorize the Organizers of the contest to store a copy of the film in their archive and to use it for didactic and research purposes, in any contest which is adequate for promoting and enhancing the use of films as instruments for research on contemporary work; commercial use is absolutely excluded in the protection of both the authors' and the producers' interests.

5.4) Participating in the contest involves full acceptance of these rules.

Modena, Italy, December 21, 2022